

Senate To Alter Defense Portion Of Pacific Pact

Senator Brandegee Offers Resolution So U. S. Won't be Bound to Intervene
CONGRESS MUST GIVE O. K.
Senator Lodge Himself Said to be in Favor of Protective Treaty Feature

Washington—Adoption of a reservation to the four-power Pacific treaty by the senate foreign relations committee, became a virtual certainty Tuesday.

Senator Brandegee, Connecticut, offered a reservation in the foreign relations committee and the ensuing discussion indicated that it would be adopted through some modifications may be made.

The reservation prevents the United States government being bound by any agreements under the treaty regarding preservation of other nations rights in the Pacific islands, without the specific sanction and approval of congress.

TEXT OF RESERVATION
Brandegee's reservation follows: "The senate advises and consents subject to the following reservation which is to be made a part of the instrument of ratification to wit: "The United States understands that it assumes no obligation either legal or moral, to maintain the rights in relation to the insular possessions or insular contracting parties and that the consent of the congress of the United States shall be necessary to any adjustment or understanding under article I or II by which the United States is to be bound in any way and under the no obligation either legal or moral to give such consent."

LODGE IN FAVOR
Even Senator Lodge, chairman of the committee and a member of the American delegation at the arms conference, favors the reservation.

Brandegee said.

The committee adjourned without voting on the reservation because of the absence of a number of senators.

Senator Pomeroy, Ohio, Democrat, who will support the treaty, will ask that the Brandegee reservation be modified somewhat by a further meeting, but it was indicated, will vote for it in its present form if his proposed change is rejected.

ATTACK HARDING
Discussion of the reservation was preceded by an attack on President Harding's attitude respecting the information sought by the senate on the treaty, in response to the Hitchcock resolution. Senator Johnson, California, said Harding had shrouded the making of the treaty in secrecy and complained that it was not fair to the senate which must pass on it.

Johnson said that, however, he expected that Secretary Hughes be called before the committee to tell about the conversations from which the treaty grew. In fact, the movement to have Hughes appear seemed to have collapsed overnight because of the absence of Senator Hitchcock, leading advocate of Hughes' appearance.

ALLIED DEBT MIGHT SUPPLY BONUS MONEY

Congress Still Has Hopes Of Answering Insistent Demand From This Source

BANKERS WANT PAY FIRST
Perplexing Question is to Whom First Money From Debt Of Interest Should Go

By David Lawrence
Copyright, 1922, by Post Publ. Co.
Washington—The bonus problem gets bigger and bigger. More negatives from the executive end of the government fall to stem the tide of sentiment on Capitol Hill for some kind of a bonus. The Democrats who are not displeased over the political discomfiture of the Republicans are telling the Legion men that if the Republicans really wanted to pass a bonus and pay it, they could.

But where would the money be obtained? It's here the complexity of the financial problem of the government affords opportunity for all sorts of schemes. One Democratic senator told the writer Monday for instance that the British government was ready and able to pay a part of its debt to the United States government and was also able to pay interest and a part of the sum borrowed from American banking concerns before the United States entered the war in 1917. He insisted that back of the fight against the bonus was the determination of these banking interests to get their money before the American government received anything from England.

HARD TO TRACE
This kind of argument is hard to trace down. The Anglo-French loan floated in the United States before the war amounted to $500,000,000. The interest payments have been regularly met. If any sums beyond that are owed to American munition firms, the treasury hasn't the figures. Some estimates run as high as five billions of dollars but the statistics cannot be verified. There has been a recurrence of these rumors in the last few days because of the statements from French officials that France probably wouldn't be able to pay its debt to the United States at any time.

The question of whether American private firms shall receive from the allies the money owed them ahead of any payments on the American government's debt is something the funding commission will be appointed by President Harding will have to thresh out with the allies. The commission consists of the secretary of the treasury, and two members of the cabinet as well as a representative of the senate and house.

WATCH COMMISSION
Certainly it looks now as if the work of the funding commission will be subjected to more scrutiny than anybody imagined when it was first proposed. The chances are its work will be as carefully and closely watched as if it were a commission negotiating a vital treaty.

Opinion is of course divided as to whether it would be just to use the proceeds from the allied debt to pay a bonus. The original law whereby the liberty loans were raised provided that the first moneys received from the allies should go toward the payment of interest on liberty bonds. This viewpoint has recently been expressed at the White house. The law granting that the proceeds from the allied payments are applied to pay interest on liberty bonds, the advocates of a bonus insist that the United States government will then have available from direct taxation the sums which now are being raised by pay interest on public debt, something like $300,000,000 a year. If the allied payments reduce that amount, for example, by $300,000,000 annually, there will be an equivalent sum available from direct taxation wherewith the bonus might be paid.

The stock was issued for the purpose of obtaining funds for repairs and new equipment already installed in property and plant.

SUGGESTS ALLIED DEBT COMMISSION

QUEST PELLETIER BY COURT ORDER

By United Press Leased Wire
Boston, Mass.—District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier was removed from office in a decision handed down by the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts Tuesday.

Will Veto Bonus If Protests Keep Up

House Members Want to Know if Harding Will Veto Sales Tax Only or Whole Bonus Measure so as to Postpone Issue.

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington—President Harding is "strongly in favor" of postponing soldier bonus legislation until next year, it was learned on reliable authority Tuesday.

The president communicated his view to a Republican senator who called at the White house. He did not say that he would veto a bonus bill if it is sent to him, but indicated he might do so if protests continue to reach him.

ANALYZES PROTEST
What Harding wants to know, it is reported, is whether the opposition is to the bonus bill itself, or only against paying the bonus by the special taxes which the senate house conferees originally decided upon.

There was a demand from many house members Tuesday that the president indicate clearly whether he will veto a bonus measure if it comes to him with other than the sales tax method for providing the needed revenue.

Opponents of the sales tax in the house were claiming a victory Tuesday. Early reports, they said, indicated that the petition started out late Monday against the sales tax was being freely signed in all state delegations.

SINN FEIN VOTE PUTS DE VALERA'S STRENGTH TO TEST
Delegates From All Parts Of Ireland Will Vote On British Treaty

By United Press Leased Wire
Dublin—Delegates from every part of Ireland representing branches of Sinn Fein met here Tuesday in National convention to decide what proportion of the organization will support the treaty with Great Britain.

The convention was called to order by Eamon DeValera at 11:30 Tuesday morning.

A victory for the free state was expected in this, the first free vote on the issue.

Eamon DeValera and his followers Tuesday began their real fight against the treaty which will make Ireland a member of the British commonwealth. Resolutions which would commit the Sinn Fein to support DeValera and his candidate in the forthcoming elections on the question of the treaty will be proposed by the former republican president and a vote taken Tuesday evening.

LETTERS TO GIRL MAY CLEAR MAN OF CREEK KILLING

"Miracle Creek" Murder Still is Mystery to The Jefferson-co. Authorities

By United Press Leased Wire
Palmyra, Wis.—Although the victim of the "Miracle Creek" murder mystery has been identified, the Jefferson-co. authorities are still baffled as to the murderer.

District Attorney Ray C. Twining found letters mailed at Akron, Ohio, by Fred McBride, sought in connection with the murder, to his fiancée at East Troy, dated Dec. 12 and Dec. 14, which would indicate he could have had nothing to do with the murder.

The Jefferson-co. authorities, however, have asked the Akron police to locate McBride and hold him for questioning.

The body of the victim has been identified by several persons as that of Edward Thielan, of Racine. Thielan was last seen Nov. 19 when he left his home at Racine in company with McBride in his automobile, with the intention of returning to East Troy, where McBride had lost some money. McBride is said to have returned to the Thielan home the next day, saying his friend had gone to Chicago to work.

Authorities are puzzled over the lapse of time between the disappearance of Thielan Nov. 19 and the finding of the body on Dec. 15. When found the condition of the body indicated the victim had been dead but a short time, but authorities say that had the body been buried, well protected from the air, it would have been in good condition a month later.

ROBBERS FORFEIT BAIL OF $7,000
Menroe, Wis.—Bail money deposited by Mike Janna and Arthur Dunks, charged with robbery of the Ward and Kunzeal warehouse at Brodhead last month, was declared forfeited by Judge George Griffon of circuit court here Monday afternoon when the men failed to appear for trial.

Bench warrants were immediately issued for their appearance. The bail money amounted to $7,000. Charles Singer, third defendant, was on hand, but his case was postponed until word is received from the missing men.

The three men were arrested at Brodhead after the furs taken from the warehouse at Brodhead were discovered in their automobile.

No Glad Hand For 'Cousin' Emil At M'Cormick Home

Chicago—"Cousin" Emil Burg rattled up to call on his "relations"—the family of Harold F. McCormick—but didn't get past the front porch. Emil, cousin of Max Oser, Swiss lawyer stable proprietor whose engagement to Mabel McCormick, 16, has been announced, just wanted to meet "Cousin Mabel and welcome her in to the family," he said Tuesday.

"I didn't bring 'mama' along with me because she is tied up with the family washing," Emil apologized to reporters when he "flipped" up to the McCormick mansion.

He rang the bell.

"But there!" exclaimed Emil as he extended his hand when the door was opened. "America knows how to take care of her war heroes." That was Emil's first mistake. He thought the butler was a war hero because he was dressed like a Balkan general.

"I'm Cousin Emil," he continued. "I came to pay my respects to my new relations. By the old country we always make these calls before the wedding."

Emil waited.

"A little paint here and there around this place would go fine," Emil, a decorator, mused. "Maybe Mr. McCormick will give me a job."

The butler brought out the tidings that Mrs. McCormick is out receiving any one today.

Emil cranked up.

"Perhaps another day," he said. "I want 'em to feel welcome in our family. Nothing stuck up about us."

35 Killed When Big U.S. Dirigible Explodes In Air

Non-explosive Helium Gas Was Removed From Huge Aircraft Before Flight Was Begun To Break Air Records

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington—Thirty-five men were killed when the Roma, giant dirigible of the American army's air fleet, exploded over Hampton Roads Tuesday afternoon, the navy department advised, in a radio message from the naval operating base at Hampton Roads.

The big ship exploded with a terrific blast when about one thousand feet above the ground, the report stated. As the mass of wreckage fell to the ground, fire broke out and the ship fell in the water almost a mass of flames. The message added that sub-chasers and other craft were rushed to the scene.

WAS MAKING RECORD
An attempt was to be made by the Roma to smash the world's record for speed with a dirigible. Langley Field officers confidently expected the ship to make 80 miles an hour on the trip. The accident took place two hours after the ship left her hangar at Langley Field.

The Roma had just been emptied of helium gas which is non-explosive and non-inflammable.

As the ship contained all of the helium in the country, naval authorities ordered it taken from the bag and stored. Ordinary field gas used for balloon inflation was substituted. The operation of changing gases was completed Saturday.

MOTORS CHANGED
Tuesday's flight was the first one taken with liberty motors as a motive power. The new motor plant was installed on return from Washington where the ship was christened.

The Italian 2 engines refused to function properly in cold weather and were taken out in December and liberties were put in their place.

The disaster to the Roma is the second that has overtaken an air cruiser built for the United States by a foreign government, within six months.

The ZR-2 built for this country by Great Britain blew up over Hatteras Island with a loss of 62 lives on Aug. 25, 1921. There were 66 on board when the great ship exploded and fell into the river Humber and only four survived.

PEAVEY MUST FACE NEW MURDER QUIZ
Story About Negro Friend Involves Him Further in Taylor Case

Los Angeles—Henry Peavey, negro valet of William Desmond Taylor, slain movie director, Tuesday faced a new quiz at the hands of authorities who are to check up on information furnished by him concerning another negro named Anderson for whom Peavey claims to have obtained employment in the household of a friend of Taylor.

Anderson, according to Peavey's story, was an old acquaintance in St. Louis where the two worked and frequented the same club for negro servants.

Two weeks before the mysterious murder, the two met near the Taylor home, Peavey said. Anderson was seeking employment. Peavey helped him obtain a job as servant in the home of one of Taylor's friends, whose name is not mentioned.

Acting on this information, investigators communicated with St. Louis authorities, who denied the existence of any such club as Peavey named.

NEUTRALITY ON BORDER ENFORCED
By United Press Leased Wire
El Paso, Tex.—American authorities Tuesday moved drastically to enforce neutrality laws along the Mexican border.

Former General Juan Merigo of the Carranza army, was held under $10,000 bond by U. S. Commissioner Smith following an expedition which is alleged to have crossed from the American side two weeks ago to hold up a Mexican national train south of Juarez.

Four other members of Merigo's band were held under lesser bond.

MINERS AND RAIL WORKERS CONFER ON NEW ALLIANCE

Labor Heads Gather in Chicago to Discuss Plans For Working Together

Chicago—Powerful rail and mine union representatives met here Tuesday to discuss the "defensive alliance" proposed by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers.

Advisability of a coalition of the two labor groups for the purpose of fighting further wage reductions threatened by employers was the subject of the conference.

Fifteen of the sixteen railroad unions, including four big brotherhoods, answered the call of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers.

WAGES ARE ISSUE
The miners, through Lewis, issued the call for the conference when operators refused to treat with union representatives concerning a new contract to go into effect April 1. Operators also stated wages would be cut.

The railroad unions, facing another fight against wage reductions before the United States railroad labor board on March 6, accepted the invitation as a chance to air mutual problems.

Although the meeting between the railroads and miners was called for 3 p. m. Tuesday, it was expected that sessions would not get under way until Tuesday night.

IS WALL-ST. AFTER MOVIE INDUSTRY?
Murder of Taylor is Believed to be Beginning of Battle For Control

By Thompson Buchanan
(Noted Playwright)
By United Press Leased Wire
Los Angeles—"Is Wall street trying to steal the film industry?"

Is the mysterious murder of William Desmond Taylor, motion picture director shot to death in Los Angeles, the incident that is to bring into the open the battle of big business for control of the world's fifth greatest industry?

These questions are being asked on all sides, especially in view of the apparently spontaneous, concerted attack on the industry, the skillfully managed flood of malicious vituperation which is now sweeping the country from end to end.

It wasn't under the last two years that Wall street began seriously to take a vital interest in the motion picture industry. The making of pictures involves an enormous outlay of money and naturally, as in all other big industries where credit enters largely into financing, Wall street is said, was prompt to seize upon the necessities of the producers.

Several of the largest producers have gone down in a battle which is said to have been precipitated by money interests.

DEFER LABOR PARTY PLANS TO NEXT DEC.
Outcome of November Elections Will be Awaited—Wage State Fights Now

Chicago—Organization of a national farm-labor political alliance was postponed Tuesday until the second Monday in December, at the conference between the two groups' representatives here.

The conference decided to await the outcome of the November elections before going ahead with the national organization. Pending formation of the national coalition, however, the farm and laborers will work together through state organizations.

A committee of fifteen was appointed to report at the December meeting on a national organization scheme.

Mobs Battle Police and Mayor of Pawtucket, R. I. With Stones and Clubs

TWO DIE; SEVERAL WOUNDED
Rumors That Agitators Fomented Riots Are Denied by Authorities

By United Press Leased Wire
Providence, R. I.—Gov. Emory J. San Souci Tuesday called out all available state militia to restore order in the Blackstone and Pawtucket valleys, where two men have been killed and many wounded in clashes between police and striking textile workers.

With the calling out of coast artillery units Tuesday and the despatch of 30 machine gunners to Natick, practically all of the state guardsmen were on duty.

The artillery units rushed to Pawtucket.

RIOT ACTS READ
The governor also issued a proclamation calling upon the people to stop "rioting and tumultuous assemblies." According to unconfirmed rumors in circulation Tuesday, I. W. W. agitators, radicals from the mine districts and from New York city have arrived here and are using their influence to push the strike.

The authorities discarded these rumors. Police pointed out that native Americans among the textile workers are keeping order among themselves and that those leading the disorders are foreigners.

TWO SHOT DEAD
Pawtucket, R. I.—Two men were killed and a score injured in a pitched battle between textile workers and the police here Tuesday.

Joseph Assuncan and an unidentified striker were shot down and killed when the police fired by Mayor Robert A. Kenyon opened fire with riot guns on a crowd of strikers which refused to disperse.

Soon after sunrise, strikers began to gather in Providence, near the site of the Jefferson spinning company. Kenyon ordered them to move on but the strikers were disregarded. The crowd increased in numbers and became threatening.

MAYOR IN CHARGE
When it became apparent that the threat of a riot was imminent, the little group of police, a call for reinforcements was sent in. Mayor Kenyon himself hurried to the spot with a squad of reserves.

Driving his automobile into the heart of the crowd the mayor stood upon the seat, pleaded for order and then when he failed to quiet the crowd, read the riot act.

"The streets must be cleared," Mayor Kenyon shouted to the police. "Use your judgment and shoot if necessary."

He jumped from his automobile and led the police in the control of the strikers, which milled about. The mayor struck at men on all sides of him. The police wielded their night sticks. The strikers retaliated with pieces of lumber, stones, anything they could lay their hands on.

EXCHANGE BLOWS
The battle became general, and Mayor Kenyon was swallowed up in the melee, and several strikers got in blows at him. He was somewhat rattled and bruised when he emerged from the fray.

Suddenly an order was given for the police to fire and a volley rang out.

Assuncan and four or five other men fell in their tracks.

Panic ensued.

Some of the wounded strikers managed to drag themselves off, but a number were wounded, while Assuncan and his unidentified comrade were dead.

A score or more were treated later for injuries from clubs and stones.

COUNTY PIONEERS GET TOGETHER TO SWAP OLD STORIES

Annual Meeting of Pioneer Association to be Held Here Wednesday

Outagamie county will take a look backward Wednesday when the Outagamie County Pioneer association holds its annual convention marking the fifteenth anniversary of its organization.

The annual banquet will be served at 11:45 in Odd Fellow hall and this will be followed by an address by Hon. John Strange of Menasha. Others who will appear on the program are Miss Mildred Barr, the Rev. T. A. Holter, Mayor J. A. Hawes, Miss Marion Hutchinson, Harry Wilson, George Meckelson, Miss Doris Thiel, Attorney Francis J. Rooney and Secretary W. M. Tibbels.

The banquet will be spread in old-fashioned style, with each family providing its own basket. The program will be varied with vocal and instrumental music and assembly singing.

Outagamie County Pioneer association was organized Feb. 1812 with a membership of 133 settlers. Organization was effected through a meeting called in a proclamation published Feb. 10, 1812 in the Evening Crescent and signed by John Stevens J. of Plover, W. S. Warner, John E. Johnston, William McGuire and Sam Ryan, Jr., none of whom now are living.

James Jackson, a colored man, whom the people of Appleton village at that time knew as "General" holds a unique place among the first members. Elmer Spencer served as secretary of the association 23 years and was succeeded by W. M. Roblee who is now closing his twenty-second year in office. Twelve years ago Mr. Roblee also accepted the office of treasurer and has discharged dual responsibilities in the association since that time. John Dey, who died in 1913 served as president of the association for 40 years.

At the present time the membership numbers 148 and the aim of the officers now is to perpetuate the association by admitting all those who can claim connection with the pioneers. The growth in membership is apt to seem very small until it is considered that in the year from Feb. 23, 1909 till the same date in 1910, 97 members died.

FARM INSTITUTE PROGRAM FITS IN CONDITIONS HERE

Slight Changes Have Been Made in Subject Matter For Greenville Meeting

Several changes have been made in the program for the 2-day farmers' meeting which is to be held under auspices of Greenville town board at Greenville Thursday and Friday, in order to make the subjects and discussions applicable directly to the farmers who will attend.

No subject is closer to the dairyman these days than that of eradicating tuberculosis from cows. Dr. James Healy, in charge of this work in Wisconsin, therefore has been secured for an address on "What Testers for Tuberculosis Means to Greenville Dairymen."

As the program stands now, the address at 10 o'clock Thursday morning by C. H. Imig, Junction City, on "Constructive Breeding of Dairy Cattle," will be the opening event. Peter Schwartz of Waukesha then speaks on "Why Buy Apples? Better Sell Them."

The afternoon session at 1:30 will be opened by Mr. Schwartz, who speaks on "Success with Alfalfa," a subject of which he has a wide knowledge. Paul O. Nyhus, farm agent of the National bank, Appleton, then gives a talk on "Alfalfa Seed for Outagamie County Alfalfa Growers." Dr. Healy is to give his talk and will be followed by Mr. Imig, whose subject will be "What Neighborhood Clubs Are Doing." A motion picture "Out of the Shadows," concludes Thursday afternoon's program.

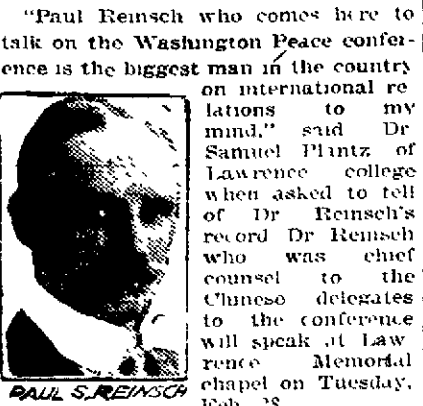

A one-hour community program will be given Thursday evening by pupils of rural schools in the Greenville locality. Mr. Imig speaks on "As Farmers Would Like It," and a motion picture, "The Taming of the Shrew," follows.

Friday morning's program begins at 10 o'clock with another talk by Mr. Imig on "If Men Were Housekeepers." J. B. Hayes, of the college of agriculture, Madison, gives a talk to poultry raisers on "Culling and Housing the Poultry Flock."

The closing session at 1:30 Friday afternoon includes a report on the recent investigations of contagious abortion in this locality by Mr. Nyhus. Mr. Hayes speaks on "Feeding to Get Winter Eggs," and Mr. Imig on "Feeding for Profit and Profit for Results." A motion picture, "Milk Nature's Perfect Food," will emphasize to farmers the value of their product.

DR. REINSCH TO SPEAK IN CHAPEL HERE NEXT WEEK

Noted Badger Expected to Tell About Washington Peace Conference

"Paul Reinsch who comes here to talk on the Washington Peace conference is the biggest man in the country on international relations," said Dr. Samuel Plintz of Lawrence college when asked to tell of Dr. Reinsch's record. Dr. Reinsch who was chief counsel to the Chinese delegates to the conference will speak at Lawrence Memorial chapel on Tuesday, Feb. 28.

Dr. Reinsch, who was for many years in the department of international politics and law at the University of Wisconsin was also ambassador to China for eight years. He has been in the heart of the Washington Peace conference and supervised the peace of the Chinese there. His books on international subjects are recognized authorities.

Because the former ambassador to China is speaking at Madison on Monday, the committee was able to bring him to Appleton. A great deal of interest is being shown in the opportunity to hear of the conference from one who was in the very center of its activities.

LAABS WILL NOT BE CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR THIS YEAR

Third Ward Alderman Will Seek Reelection to the Common Council

August W. Laabs, alderman from the Third ward, definitely announced on Monday that he would not be a candidate for mayor at the spring election. Mr. Laabs declared a week ago that he was considering the matter but Monday he said that other business matters will make it impossible for him to administer the city's business if he should be elected. Mr. Laabs, however, will be a candidate for reelection to the council.

The removal of Laabs from the race leaves the field rather barren, with only a few candidates for the mayoralty as yet. Only two men have been prominently suggested for the position. They are Dr. D. O. Kinsman, head of the department of economics of Lawrence college, and T. A. Gallagher and neither of those men has publicly announced his intention.

It is reported that C. D. Thompson is being urged to become a candidate for alderman from the Second ward. It is believed that Mr. Thompson can be induced to enter the campaign. No other candidates have been suggested from that ward thus far.

SHARP DECREASE IN LIVESTOCK VALUES

Wisconsin Farm Livestock is Worth $50,000,000 Less
Than Year Ago

Farm livestock in Wisconsin decreased in value more than $50,000,000 last year according to a report made by the division of agricultural statistics of the state department of agriculture. This decrease was due to an average drop of 19 per cent in the market prices of cattle, sheep, hogs and horses.

Along with the decrease in price, the number of dairy cows, horses, sheep and swine showed a decrease. Dairy heifers, other cattle, poultry and hogs increased in number. On Jan. 1, this year the value of all Wisconsin livestock was placed at $223,309,000 compared with $276,337,000 a year previous.

A livestock census places the farm animal population at the following figures: dairy cows and heifers, 2,195,000; other cattle, 885,000; swine, 1,659,000; sheep and lambs, 357,000; horses, 656,000; poultry, 12,722,000; bees, 134,000 colonies.

Livestock in Wisconsin represent one twentieth of the entire valuation of livestock in the United States. The value of all farm animals in this country is now estimated at $4,780,000,000. A national census of farm animals gives the following numbers of livestock: horses, 19,093,000; milk cows, 24,028,000; other cattle, 41,324,000; sheep and lambs, 36,048,000; swine, 56,908,000.

According to estimated values, the price per head of dairy cows has decreased from $97 two years ago to $52 at the present time. Percentages of decrease in the price of other animals was as follows: horses, 15; poultry, 43; sheep, 58; swine, 55; cattle, 18; bees, 9.

SHEBOYGAN STARTS ON PLANS FOR SAENGERFEST

Appleton society of the East Wisconsin Saenger Beziirk will be represented in the mass choir which will sing at the annual saengerfest in Sheboygan, July 15 and 16.

The songs to be sung at this gathering will soon arrive from Germany and will be distributed among the societies throughout the state. Officers of the society have decided to insure the saengerfest against rain to safeguard against loss. This action was taken because rain interfered with the gathering in Appleton last summer.

Sheboygan committees to prepare for the saengerfest have been named and soon will begin planning for the coming event.

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrups, and saves about $2. Easily and quickly prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle, and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break severe coughs. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. Railroad Jack Wills His Body To State University

"Railroad Jack," the memory expert who spoke in Appleton schools and on street corners here about two years ago, amazing everyone with his marvelous memory for dates and facts, will continue to "serve" the people after death. He had taken care of this by willing his body to the University of Wisconsin for research work. He also has willed his tractor, which cost him about $700, to the state school.

His will was written in a newspaper office a few days ago with two university students as witnesses.

The will follows: "Know all men by these presents that I, Harry D. Cooper, familiarly known to the world as Railroad Jack, do hereby will my body to the University of Wisconsin for anatomical purposes and my Fordson tractor which represents a total investment of 700 dollars, including the galvanized iron trailer and other equipment to the agricultural department of the said university to be used in such way as may please those who will have the authority to make good use of the said tractor and said trailer.

WANTS TO HELP
"I make this bequest in regard to my body by reason of the fact that during the years 1886 and 1887 while a student at Rush Medical college, I learned the value of good 'subjects' for anatomical research work and I determined to do my part not only in life but in death, so to speak, to enhance the value of surgical work."

"In witness whereof I here unto subscribe my name."

MORGAN SWINGS AXE ON UNIVERSITY PROF

Attorney General W. J. Morgan fired several hot shots at Prof. Ross of the University of Wisconsin, prominent exponent of the theory of birth control, in an address before Lawrence college students in chapel Monday morning. He assailed Dr. Ross's doctrines severely and wound up by declaring that the affairs of men will be ordered so that the earth will be sufficient to support them.

"I congratulate you," Mr. Morgan told the students, "upon the privilege you have of studying under a faculty that has sufficient faith in the omnipotence of God that they do not worry that our Divine Creator, who observes even a sparrow's fall, will not so order the affairs of men that this earth will be sufficient to support the human race."

The Story the Mirror Tells About Laundry Service

The mirror tells a pleasing, reassuring story to the woman who has her family washing done our laundry way.

It tells her of still youthful charm; of eyes bright and smiling; of a smooth, unwrinkled brow; of slim, fine hands.

We can shield you, too, from the wearing, aging influence of washday; from the annoyance of hands chafed from constant contact with boiling waters; we can relieve you of the fatigue that comes from long hours of ironing.

We wash your clothes in numerous waters and return them to you, sweet and clean, carefully finished.

H. S. WINS DEBATES AND CAGE BATTLE

Friday Contests Bring Triple Victory to New London School Teams

(Special to Post-Crescent)

New London—New London high school students won a triple victory last Friday evening. The high school basketball five defeated the Clintonville team in a game at Clintonville, by a score of 13 to 10.

The two debating teams were victorious as well, one at Seymour and the other at home. The debate was a triangular contest between Kaukauna, Seymour and New London high school, on the question "Resolved, that the reduction of national armaments to the status of adequate police forces within a period of ten years is practical." Each school prepared an affirmative and a negative team.

The local negative debaters, Ovid Strossenruther, Walter Pribnow and Patrick Conroy, went to Seymour and defeated the affirmative team of that high school. The Kaukauna negatives came to New London to debate the local affirmative squad composed of Edward Ward, Marvin Morack and Morris Lewis, and were defeated. The local contest was held in the high school assembly room and was judged by J. B. MacBride, a professor from Lawrence college.

Musical numbers were presented between the arguments. The junior girls' Glee club gave two selections and J. T. Walters rendered a violin solo and a vocal solo accompanied by Miss Elsie Schidlo.

CUT $50,000 OFF FROM BUDGET FOR NEW HIGH SCHOOL

Committee Fears to Bond City Almost to the Legal Limit—Use Auditorium

Kaukauna.—Technicians, bonds and unforeseen delays had all but shattered the dream that Kaukauna was soon to have a new high school, fully equipped and as good as any in the state, at a cost of $200,000. What little was left of the dream drifted into oblivion last Friday when a committee of three from the common council and the joint school boards decided to strike the gymnasium and the auditorium from the high school plans and construct the building at a cost of $150,000. It was explained that the city has been bonded for a sum which would allow the bond issue of $200,000 impossible.

The committee declared the auditorium and gymnasium can be built later, even after the high school has been completed. Meanwhile, the city auditorium may be used as the gymnasium and will be turned over to the high school. However, students have been required to pay rent for the auditorium although it is the property of the school board.

With the high school bond issue at $150,000, the city still will have $55,000 to fall back on in case a bond issue is suddenly required for some other purpose. Bonds aggregating $133,000 are already placed for the municipal building and for sewer repair work.

Miss Edna Tobin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Tobin, Channing, Mich., was married to Elmer Peter Green Bay, at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning in Channing, Mich. Mr. Peterman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peterman of this city, and is employed as machinist at the Green Bay Chicago and Northwestern Railroad shops. REFORMED CHURCH TEAM TO PLAY APPLETON QUINT

Kaukauna.—A large crowd is expected at the basketball game Friday evening at the auditorium when the Reformed church quint stacks against the St. Paul Lutheran church of Appleton. The local church team has been idle nearly all season because of the lack of following this season in the game.

WANT CHANGE IN SCHOOL SYSTEM

Kaukauna Voters Call Special Meeting to Discuss Union School District

Kaukauna.—A special meeting of the voters of Joint school district No. 1, has been called by Hugh Mulholand, district clerk, upon petition of the required number of voters. The meeting will be held Friday evening, Feb. 24, at Nicole's school, at which time two questions of importance will be voted upon preliminary to the spring elections.

The questions are "Shall the city school plan be adopted?" and "Shall the school board be elective?" Kaukauna at present has two school districts, one for each side of the river. Members picked from each of the two boards form the board which has jurisdiction over the high school. The city school plan is a result of the new general charter law which went into effect in all cities in the state on January 1, 1922.

It provides for only one school district and one school board over all the public schools in Kaukauna. If the first question is accepted the next step will be to determine how the board will be named. The second question "shall the board be elective?" will then be presented to the voters. In case a vote is yes in each case, plans will have to be made to secure candidates in the spring election.

Piles

Can't Be Cured From the Outside External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations. The cause is inside—bad circulation. The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must first cure the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leonard, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Schintz Bros. and druggists everywhere, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer. adv.

FARMERS WANT TO GET FEDERAL AID

Organization to Take Advantage of U. S. Offer is Considered Here

Formation of an association through which farmers of Outagamie co., may take advantage of the federal farm loan act to secure financial aid this spring is now being considered. A number of farmers have already broached the matter to Paul O. Nyhus farm agent for the First National Bank, and if sufficient demand is made, the association will be organized within the next month.

It is understood the farmers in need of loans are anxious to avail themselves of the 5-year mortgage plan. By this plan they need have no thought of interest or principal until the expiration of the 5-year term. In case of sale the mortgage is transferred with the farm. NEENAH ALSO FACES PROBLEM OF GARBAGE

Urgent need for a proper system of garbage disposal by the city of Neenah was discussed at a meeting of the Neenah Aerie of Eagles last week by Dr. C. C. DelMarcelle, Neenah health officer.

Dr. DelMarcelle urged the purchase of an incinerator to cost about $300 which he said would care for the disposed of all garbage. He suggested that all garbage be collected twice a week and destroyed. He also appealed for a city regulation requiring the vaccination of all children before entering school. Such vaccination would reduce the prevalence of children's diseases, he said.

ERSKINE DALE PIONEER

by JOHN FOX Jr.

Continue From Our Last Issue
The braves then went to their fire-water, and soon the boy's foster-mother brought him something to eat, but she could say nothing, for Black Wolf had appointed himself a sentinel and sat rifle in hand at the door of the lodge.

Night came on. The drinking became more furious and once Erskine saw a pale-brown arm thrust from behind the lodge and place a jug at the feet of Black Wolf, who arched and drank deep. One by one the braves went to drunken sleep about the fire. The fire died down and by the last flickering flame the lad saw Black Wolf's chin sinking sleepily to his chest.

There was the slightest rustle behind the tent. He felt something groping for his hands and feet, felt the point of a knife graze the skin of his wrist and ankles—felt the thongs loosen and drop apart.

Noislessly, inch by inch, he crept to the wall of the tent, which was carefully lifted for him. Outside he rose and waited.

Like a shadow the girl Early Morn stole before him and like a shadow he followed. The loose snow muffled his escape from the lodge, and in a few minutes they were by the river-bank, away from the town.

The moon rose and from the shadow of a beech the white woman stepped forth with his rifle and powder horn and bullet-pouch and some food. She pointed to his horse a little farther down. He looked long and silently into the Indian girl's eyes and took the white woman's shaking hand and he had back to him. The Indian girl was stoic as stone. A bar of moonlight showed the white woman's face wet with tears.

Again Dave Randall from a watch-tower saw a topknot rise above a patch of cane now leafless and winter-bitten—saw a hand lifted high above it with a palm of peace toward him. And again an Indian youth emerged, this time leading a black horse with a drooping head. Both came painfully on, staggering, it seemed, from wounds or weakness, and Dave sprang from the tower and rushed with others to the gate. So gaunt were boy and beast that it was plain that both were starving. The boy's face was torn with briars and pinched with hunger and cold, but a faint smile came from it.

"Don't you know me, Dave?" he asked weakly.

"My God! It's White Arrow!"

XIII

When winter was breaking, more news came in of the war. The flag that had been fashioned of a soldier's white shirt, an old blue army coat, and a red petticoat was now the Stars and Stripes of the American cause.

Burgoyne had not cut off New England, that "head of the rebellion," from the other colonies. On the contrary, the Americans had beaten him at Saratoga and marched his army off under those same stars and stripes and for the first time Erskine heard of gallant Lafayette—how he had run to Whittington with the portentous news from his king—that beautiful, passionate France would now stretch forth her helping hand.

And Erskine learned what that news meant to Washington's "naked and starving" soldiers dying on the frozen hillsides of Valley Forge. Then George Rogers Clark had passed the fort on his way to Williamsburg, got money and men for his great venture in the Northwest. After Clark was gone the lad got restless; and one morning when the first breath of spring came he mounted his horse, in spite of arguments and protestations, and set forth for Virginia on the wilderness trail, off was going to join Clark, he said, but more than Clark and the war were drawing him to the outer world.

What it was he hardly knew, for he was not yet much given to search his heart or mind. He did know, however, that some strange force had long been working within him that was steadily growing stronger. With his mind's eye he was ever seeing at the end of his journey the face of his little cousin Barbara Dale.

A striking figure the lad made riding into the old capital one afternoon just before the sun sank behind the western woods!

The governor's palace was closed and deserted. My Lord Dunmore was long in flight. But there was the bust of Sir Walter in front of Raleigh Tavern, and there he drew up, before the steps where he was once nigh to taking Dane Grey's life.

The little tavern was thronged and the air charged with the spirit of war. Indeed, nothing to be talked back. Next morning Erskine rode forth along a sandy road, amidst the singing of birds and through a forest of tiny upshooting leaves, for Red Oaks on the James.

He had forsaken Colonel Dale to secrecy as to the note he had left behind giving his birthright to his little cousin Barbara, and he knew the confidence would be kept inviolate.

At the boat landing he hitched his horse to the low swung branch of an oak. There was the sun-dial that had marked every sunny hour since he had been away. For a moment he stood there, and when he stepped into the open he shrank back hastily—a girl was coming through the opening of boxwood from the house—coming slowly, bareheaded, her hands clasped behind her, her eyes downward.

His heart thrilled as he waited, thrilled the more when his ears caught even the soft tread of her lit feet, and seemed to stop when she paused at the sun-dial and searched the river with her eyes.

Soon the girl fluttered a handkerchief and from the single passenger in the stern came an answering flutter of white and a glad cry. At the bend of the river the boat disappeared from Erskine's sight under the bank, and he watched the girl. How she had grown! Her slim figure had rounded and shone upward, and her white gown had dropped to her dainty ankles. Now her face was flushed and her eye flashed with excitement—it was no mere kinsman in that boat, and the boy's heart began to throb fiercely with racking emotion he had never known before.

A fiery-looking youth sprang up the landing-steps, bowed gallantly over the girl's hand, and the two turned up the path, the girl rosy with smiles and the youth bending over her with a most protecting and tender air. It was Dane Grey, and the heart of the watcher turned mortal sick.

Barbara saw him first and she did not rush forward. Instead she stopped, with wide eyes, a stifled cry, and a lifting of one hand toward her heart. Grey saw too, flushed rather painfully, and calmed himself.

"Why, have I changed so much?" Erskine cried.

"Of course I knew you," she faltered, pausing a little but gathering herself rather haughtily—a fact that

Erskine noted.

"You look two by surprise and you have changed—but I don't know how much."

The significance of this, too, seemed to pass Erskine by.

"Never to you, my dear cousin," he said gallantly, and then he bowed to Dane Grey, not offering to shake hands.

The great dinner-bell from behind the house boomed its summons to the woods and fields.

"Come on," called Harry, who had just appeared. "I imagine you're hungry, cousin."

"I am," said Erskine. "I've had nothing to eat since—since early morning."

Barbara's eyes flashed up, and Grey was plainly startled. Was there a slight stress on those two words?

Mrs. Dale was visiting down the river, so Barbara sat in her mother's place.

"Now, you White Arrow, you Big Chief, tell us the story," said Harry.

Grey began to look uncomfortable, get money and men for his great venture in the Northwest. After Clark was gone the lad got restless; and one morning when the first breath of spring came he mounted his horse, in spite of arguments and protestations, and set forth for Virginia on the wilderness trail, off was going to join Clark, he said, but more than Clark and the war were drawing him to the outer world.

"Come on," called Harry, who had just appeared. "I imagine you're hungry, cousin."

"I am," said Erskine. "I've had nothing to eat since—since early morning."

Barbara's eyes flashed up, and Grey was plainly startled. Was there a slight stress on those two words?

Mrs. Dale was visiting down the river, so Barbara sat in her mother's place.

"Now, you White Arrow, you Big Chief, tell us the story," said Harry.

Grey began to look uncomfortable, get money and men for his great venture in the Northwest. After Clark was gone the lad got restless; and one morning when the first breath of spring came he mounted his horse, in spite of arguments and protestations, and set forth for Virginia on the wilderness trail, off was going to join Clark, he said, but more than Clark and the war were drawing him to the outer world.

What it was he hardly knew, for he was not yet much given to search his heart or mind. He did know, however, that some strange force had long been working within him that was steadily growing stronger. With his mind's eye he was ever seeing at the end of his journey the face of his little cousin Barbara Dale.

A striking figure the lad made riding into the old capital one afternoon just before the sun sank behind the western woods!

The governor's palace was closed and deserted. My Lord Dunmore was long in flight. But there was the bust of Sir Walter in front of Raleigh Tavern, and there he drew up, before the steps where he was once nigh to taking Dane Grey's life.

The little tavern was thronged and the air charged with the spirit of war. Indeed, nothing to be talked back. Next morning Erskine rode forth along a sandy road, amidst the singing of birds and through a forest of tiny upshooting leaves, for Red Oaks on the James.

He had forsaken Colonel Dale to secrecy as to the note he had left behind giving his birthright to his little cousin Barbara, and he knew the confidence would be kept inviolate.

At the boat landing he hitched his horse to the low swung branch of an oak. There was the sun-dial that had marked every sunny hour since he had been away. For a moment he stood there, and when he stepped into the open he shrank back hastily—a girl was coming through the opening of boxwood from the house—coming slowly, bareheaded, her hands clasped behind her, her eyes downward.

His heart thrilled as he waited, thrilled the more when his ears caught even the soft tread of her lit feet, and seemed to stop when she paused at the sun-dial and searched the river with her eyes.

Soon the girl fluttered a handkerchief and from the single passenger in the stern came an answering flutter of white and a glad cry. At the bend of the river the boat disappeared from Erskine's sight under the bank, and he watched the girl. How she had grown! Her slim figure had rounded and shone upward, and her white gown had dropped to her dainty ankles. Now her face was flushed and her eye flashed with excitement—it was no mere kinsman in that boat, and the boy's heart began to throb fiercely with racking emotion he had never known before.

A fiery-looking youth sprang up the landing-steps, bowed gallantly over the girl's hand, and the two turned up the path, the girl rosy with smiles and the youth bending over her with a most protecting and tender air. It was Dane Grey, and the heart of the watcher turned mortal sick.

Barbara saw him first and she did not rush forward. Instead she stopped, with wide eyes, a stifled cry, and a lifting of one hand toward her heart. Grey saw too, flushed rather painfully, and calmed himself.

"Why, have I changed so much?" Erskine cried.

"Of course I knew you," she faltered, pausing a little but gathering herself rather haughtily—a fact that

Erskine noted.

"You look two by surprise and you have changed—but I don't know how much."

The significance of this, too, seemed to pass Erskine by.

"Never to you, my dear cousin," he said gallantly, and then he bowed to Dane Grey, not offering to shake hands.

The great dinner-bell from behind the house boomed its summons to the woods and fields.

"Come on," called Harry, who had just appeared. "I imagine you're hungry, cousin."

"I am," said Erskine. "I've had nothing to eat since—since early morning."

Barbara's eyes flashed up, and Grey was plainly startled. Was there a slight stress on those two words?

MIRACLE CREEK MYSTERY SOLVED

Body of Murdered Man Found in Creek Was Farmhand—Slayer Is Sought

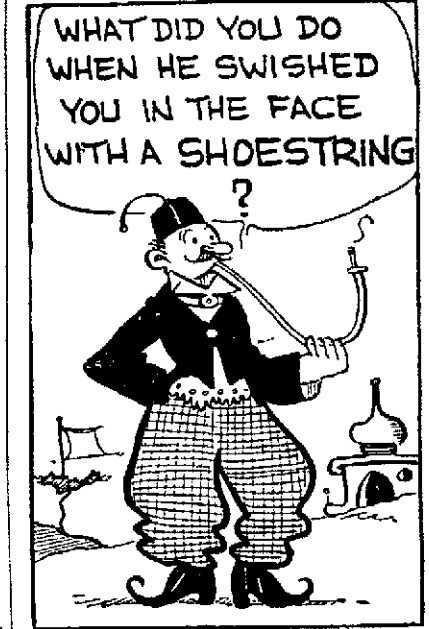

Palmyra, Wis. — The "Miracle Creek murder mystery," which has baffled Jefferson-co. authorities for nearly three months, was solved here Monday when the victim was positively identified as being Edward Thieland of Racine, who formerly worked as a farmhand for George Taft, living near here.

This became known Monday when District Attorney Ray C. Twining telegraphed police of an eastern city to arrest a friend of the slain man.

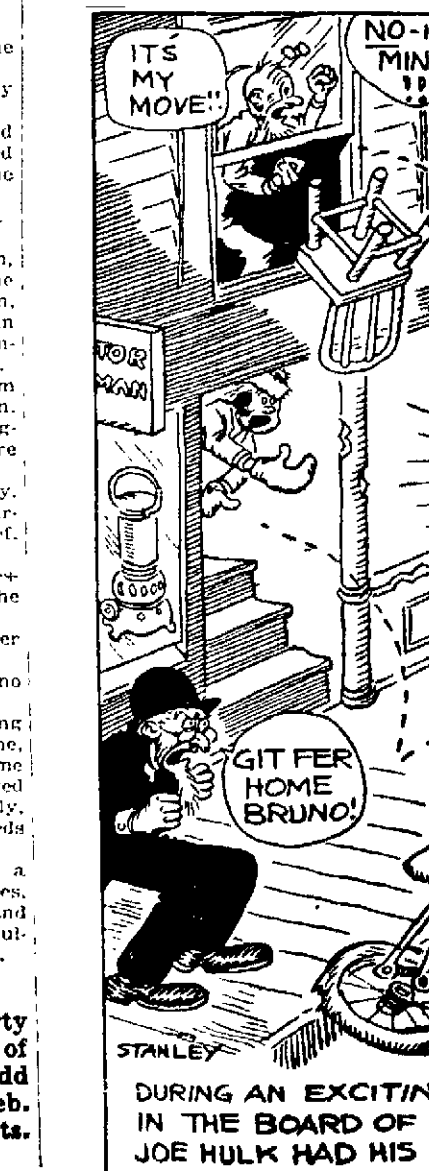

Last week Taft received a letter from Thieland's mother asking whether her son was still working on his farm. Taft, who had been under the impression that Thieland had returned to Racine, called Mrs. Thieland by telephone. He learned in the conversation that Mrs. Thieland had not heard from her son since Nov. 15. She said she thought the boy had merely neglected writing.

With the identity of the dead man known, investigators checked up where Thieland was last seen. They discovered that a friend of Thieland's had purchased a 32 calibre revolver at East Troy a few days before Thieland vanished and that the same man had sold Thieland's automobile at Waukesha a few days later. The suspect was traced east and police have been notified to arrest him.

Fashion Sleuth Finds That Men Were First To Practice Tight Lacing

Nothing New in Dress or Style in Last 200 Years, Garment Designers Are Told by Woman Who Specialized in Research Work.

Men wore the first tight belts. Feminine vanity has been blamed too long for tight lacing. Historical pictures, dating back to the fourteenth century, prove that the tight belt was a masculine habit while women wore loose garments, according to Miss Jane Pales, of the Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh. In a lecture before Cleveland garment designers, she traced the origin of certain tendencies in present day fashions back to the middle ages.

The lecture was the first in a series of dress and design arranged by the Cleveland School of Art for the Cleveland Garment Manufacturers' association. Miss Pales' talks on the history of costume will alternate with addresses by famous American designers and the editors of fashion publications.

First attempt at fitting appeared in the twelfth century, when garments for both men and women were made with a long slightly fitted waist, with the skirt attached at the hip line. Heavy rolls of fabric covered the joining and accentuated the full hip line. The sleeves were as full and loose as the present mode. Certain tendencies which the magazines have called Chinese, Miss Pales says are more authentically Modern Age.

Nothing new in dress There has been nothing really new in dress for over 200 years, she says.

In the thirteenth century the corset, an overwaist type of garment, introduced the bateau neck line for the first time. The corset was made with enlarged arm's eye which dress-makers are now finding so practicable for loose-fitting garments. The kimono sleeve was first cut in the blouse, a straight hanging garment worn by men as well as women after the Crusades and indicating the influence of the orient. This dress was long and men must have found it inconvenient after the shorter skirts of the preceding century. It was after this that they began wearing tight belts at the normal waist line in order to restrain the loose folds.

FASHIONS FROM OLD MONKS High collars, buttoned to the point of the chin, are shown on some of this season's French models, but their origin dates back to the fourteenth century. Pocket slits in the center front, monk's collars, and full hanging oversleeves all originated in this period.

The V neck was first worn extensively at the end of the Middle Ages, or about the beginning of the fifteenth century, when the prevailing women's garment was called the houppelande, and was cut with a closely-fitted waist, a tight skirt, and a V neck ending in a point at the waist line. The line of the V was bordered with fur, usually ermine, and a vest of contrasting fabric inserted.

The modern creator of costumes can borrow from the past in two ways, Miss Pales said. He can either select a detail and adapt it to modern use, combining it with details from other periods, or he can catch the general spirit and adapt it to present day wear.

Thinks Button Shoes Will Be With Us Again

With the button shoes, it is a case of "button, button, who has the button?" Practically no new button shoes have been made in the past eight years according to one shoe merchant who was asked whether button shoes would ever come back into fashion. Buttons, however, are on pumps were even threatened during the past two seasons when small buckles threatened to take their place. Many buttons hold the straps of the new low foot wear this spring, however.

"Button shoes will not come back nor will lace shoes for some time," said one shoe dealer. "Women are wearing low shoes in such variety and with such successful results that they hesitate to go back to shoes. It is only within the last few years that American women began to dress their feet in accordance with their costumes. French women learned the secret long ago, but the American woman never paid much attention to her feet aside from having an every day pair of shoes and a pair for 'nice' wear. There is no reason why button shoes should not come into favor when fashion decrees," said another salesman. "Most of the later shoes were lace, but button shoes can be just as dressy. Properly fitted spats look well on the feet and they are buttoned. Yes, button shoes began losing their vogue seven or eight years ago, but they will come back."

Slip Of Girl Is Leader Of Mexican Women

Fresno, Cal.—An 18-year-old Aztec Indian girl, only four feet seven inches high, is leading Mexican women in their fight for political equality. Her name is Conzuela Gonzales. She is in California now studying American women in politics.

"When I was 16 I became one of the four Mexican feminist organizers," Conzuela Gonzales says. "Today there are more than 150,000 women in the movement."

"Under the old Aztec civilization before the discovery of America, women and men had equal rights."

CHEESE Sprinkle grated cheese on the cooked meat and serve them on lettuce leaf with mayonnaise. They make a delicious salad, thus treated.

HANDKERCHIEFS Colored handkerchiefs are still very much in vogue. A new touch is a pin striped interior with a white border.

GET YOUR INSPIRATION WHILE WASHING DISHES—THAT'S COMPOSER'S TIP

By Ruth Abeling
Lynbrook, L. I.—"I get my best ideas when I'm washing dishes." This from Dorothy Terriss, when one asks her how and when she does her composing.

Miss Terriss is the author of the lyrics for the new song, "Three O'clock in the Morning," which has set all England walking again. Though she is still in her twenties, she has to her credit the lyrics probably of more popular songs than any other woman in her field.

"And I don't dance very much either," says she. "I'm a home girl and I originate most of the ideas for my songs while I'm about ordinary routine things. For instance, next to dish washing, I should say my best inspiration is shopping. While I'm strolling through stores, absolutely relaxed, I can daily with the ideas until something crystallizes."

Ask Miss Terriss how she happened to begin writing songs. She'll say: "Oh, my goodness, doesn't everybody fall in love just loads of times when they're young? And don't they write poems about their loves?" "Well, that's the way I began! And then I started to commercialize my poems. So you see, puppy loves are worth something."

DRAPING Paris has gone draping mad. Rarely does one see an imported model which is not much draped or much bejailed. The latter invariably extend below the hem line of the skirt.

Polly and Paul--and Paris

Chapter 43—Guests at Coming

BY ZOE BECKLEY

Polly kept her eyes down, making little marks on the tablecloth with her fingernail.

"Strange!" she soiled herself silently. "I can be as happy as a lark—until he mentions Violet's name. Then something cold and hard, like steel, grips me. I'm afraid of her and because I'm afraid of her, I hate her."

"Smatter, Pussant, aren't you keen on the housewarming idea?" Paul interrupted her bitter musings. She looked gravely at him, trying to read what was behind his merry eyes. How much could Violet make him care if she tried? How much could she tried? Had she succeeded—even a little? But no—she didn't believe it. He loved her, but Violet was so handsome and dashing and a little unscrupulous. Suppose—Wouldn't any man—

Polly forced herself to respond gayly. "Yes, dear, it's a bully idea. I was only thinking we'd have to go out in the highways and byways for guests."

"Not a bit of it. The place wouldn't hold more than we've got—"

"All right, we'll have an intensive housewarming," and Polly plumped herself on the arm of Paul's chair, determined to be the good sport and put her jealousies from her. "Now who shall we ask—Miss Rand and Monsieur Barry, Normie Brady and her Englishman, Sutton (we couldn't leave him out because he got the flat for us—he's really the guest of honor) that makes six counting us. Oh, yes, the man from your office—what's his name? Ralph Miller, that's seven—seven, we must have an even number."

"I say, Pollykin, why not Clotilde, the beautiful concierge's daughter—" mean the beautiful daughter of the concierge? She seems a darn nice girl; and instead of Miller we'll ask a young French chap at the office—Revelle—maybe he'll take a shine to her."

"Fine! That makes eight, even. Just right. And how shall we amuse them and what shall we have for refreshments?"

"I'll bet you seven dollars they won't need amusements. Paris air just naturally makes everybody gay—you'll see. As for eats, anything'll do. Shake up a fruit salad and a biscuit and I'll make 'em a punch—French fashion, which is to say with mighty little punch to it. The French are light drinkers; a spoonful of 'red ink' goes a long way with them. You know how they sit all afternoon over a glass of shirup and water or a thimbleful of cordial!"

All the guests accepted, even Clotilde, the beautiful concierge's daughter, and with singing heart Polly set about sweeping and garnishing the tiny flat and making it as pretty as her skillful fingers could. Then she shopped for her "eats"—crisp lettuce and fruits for her salad (she found grapefruit unknown, but oranges, bananas, pineapple and small wild strawberries in exchange to her, served nicely); materials for sandwich filling—cream-cheese, chopped pickles, olives, nuts and paprika; little warm brown rolls the old baker who spoke English made specially for her; and lots and lots of "petit fours," the tiny crisp cakes for which Paris is famous.

"I feel," beamed Polly, "the party's going to be a success!"

MUNCH DIFFERENCE IN TWO KINDS OF SUGAR

Many housewives think of powdered and confectioners' sugar as one and the same thing. This is true only to the extent that both are very fine grained. Confectioners' or XXXX powdered sugar, however, possesses the finest grain of texture of all sugars, which account for the smoothness of chocolate coatings and solid chocolate where it is always used. In the home, confectioners' sugar should be used for icings, fruits, uncooked fondants, or for sweetening whipped cream—for anything in fact that requires sweetening with a rapid dissolving sugar.

Standard powdered sugar is largely used by bakers, confectioners and ice cream manufacturers. In the home, it is of satisfactory coarseness—or fineness—for cereals or iced drinks. The housewife who purchases a pound of confectioners' and a pound of powdered sugar, rather than two pounds of either, is fortifying herself for emergency. She has at hand just the proper sweetener for any icing, cereal or dessert that may be needed on the spur of the moment.

LEARN A WORD EVERY DAY

Today's word is ABERRATION. It's pronounced—ab-er-ray-shun with accent on the third syllable.

It means—mental disorder, wandering, hallucination, "seeing things." It comes from Latin—"ab" away, and "errare" to err.

It's used like this—"Frequent aberrations are a sign of approaching insanity."

Adventures of the Twins

Oliver Roberts Barton

A Voice in the Dark There they were, Naney and Nick and Kip, standing helplessly on their hands in the passage with their feet sticking up in the air, and the gnomes coming after them as quickly as they could run for the Cat's eye had turned red and warned them of the escape.

Crookabone was first on the spot. "Oh, ho!" he cried, pointing a skinny finger. "So here you are! I call this luck." Tweekanose, pull off Naney's Green Shoes; Jagabump, you take Nick's and Snip Scissors, lay hold of the key and take it back to its hiding place in my cellar until I can find a better place for it."

The words took longer than the deeds. And before you could poke the ashes out of the cook-stove the gnomes had skipped back to their ugly, dark, underground village which had more hiding places than your daddy's watch has wheels, carrying with them the wonderful treasures: Naney and Nick could still hear Crookabone's mocking laugh in the distance. Then the gate slammed. All was still in the passage.

Kip spoke first. "This is a nice fix, I'll say," he remarked. His voice sounded choked and odd, just as yours might if you were trying to carry on a conversation and stand upon your head in the corner at the same time.

"What had we better do?" asked Nick in dismay. "We can't help Mr. Pim Pim now."

"It's all my fault," sobbed Naney. "Oh, I wish I hadn't forgotten! We'll never get back to Brownland! And who'll help Mr. Pim Pim dig the glittery stuff for the Christmas toys?"

"And think of the chimney-sweep and the toy-maker!" said a voice in the dark. "They'll have to be saved, too!"

SPARE TIME JOBS FOR FATHER

Rinsing dishes, before wiping them, is sometimes a tedious job when done by pouring cups of hot water over them.

Much time and trouble is saved if you use a short piece of rubber hose. Get a piece about a foot long. Attach it to the hot water faucet and spray the hot water over the drain loaded with dishes.

Beauty brings success

Make your dreams come true

Every girl has blissful dreams of success and popularity—the flowers and books and candy and dates which proclaim her a social success.

She sees herself admired, the center of attention. What heartache and disappointment if these dreams should not come true!

Many a girl misses this popularity because of some defect she herself doesn't realize. A dull, coarse, lifeless skin lessens attractiveness—blisters and blackheads positively repel.

Remedy these disfigurements, transform your unattractive complexion into one of radiant freshness and see what a good time you have at your next party.

It is the charm which always attracts, which all women envy and men admire.

This isn't hard to do

The smooth, fresh, blooming complexion which makes an overcast plain girl pretty isn't a gift of Nature, but a matter of care.

You can't neglect your skin and expect to keep it blooming and alluring. The powder and rouge you use to conceal defects deceive nobody.

The remedy for a coarse skin, for one disfigured with blackheads or ugly blotches, is daily cleansing with a lather blended from palm and olive oils.

Such a cleanser is so mild and soothing that it softens the skin and keeps it smooth. But it removes the accumulations of dirt, oil and perspiration which are responsible for most bad complexions.

Get a cake of Palmolive today

It is the modern combination of the same beautifying cosmetic, Cleopatra used in the days of ancient Egypt. It is just as valuable today as a beautifying cleanser.

Massage its smooth, creamy lather softly into the network of tiny pores which compose the surface of your skin. It will remove the clogging deposits which enlarge these pores, cause blackheads and invite blotches.

After this thorough cleansing is the time to apply cold cream if you need it. You can safely use powder, and that becoming touch of rouge on a clean skin.

Don't neglect throat and shoulders

Care of your skin must extend beyond the face if you want to be admired for complexion beauty. Use Palmolive for your daily bath and let it do for your body what it does for your face.

It will keep your neck and shoulders smooth, and your arms and hands soft and white. These are attractions as conspicuous as a blooming, blemishless face.

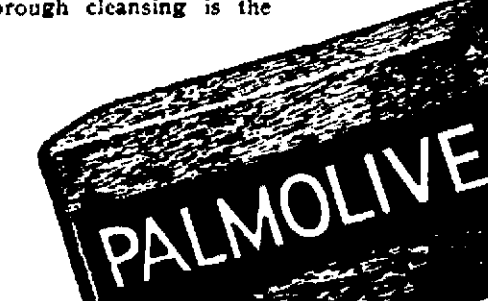

This beauty treatment costs little

Judge Palmolive by quality and you will expect to pay at least 25 cents a cake. But the popularity which keeps the Palmolive factories working day and night naturally reduces cost. Quantity production is always economical.

Thus this finest facial soap is offered at 10 cents a cake—a price all can afford. You can economically use Palmolive for every toilet purpose, for it costs no more than ordinary soap.

LAWRENCE FIVE TO MEET RIPON OUTFIT FRIDAY

Blue and White Must Win to Keep Second Place in Championship Race

With their schedule of home games completed and holding second place in the race for the Wisconsin minor college basketball championship, the Lawrence college eagles started hard practice Monday afternoon for the final battles of the season against Ripon and Carroll to be played on Friday.

The first contest of the final pair will be with Ripon Friday night on the Ripon floor. Then Congregationalists are particularly anxious to down the Blue and White as a victory would put them on even terms with Lawrence in the championship race. Ripon has lost three games this season—two to Beloit and one to Lawrence—while the Blue and White has lost but two games, both of Beloit. Ripon rosters claim their team is stronger than Coach McChesney's quintet and look for a victory Friday night.

The Lawrence mentor does not expect his tilters to have an easy time against Ripon. He realizes, and so does every man on the squad, that the team must be going just right Friday night to win.

The Lawrence quintet will wind up its season one week from Friday with a battle against Carroll on the Carroll floor. The Blue and White completely outclassed the Presbyterians here Friday night and should have no trouble beating them on their own floor.

CLASSICS of the DIAMOND

All the humor of baseball isn't confined to the ball field by any means. A lot of snappy bits of repartee, some of them mighty sarcastic, are coined by fandom.

"Slim" Harris of the Philadelphia Athletics, who is quite a pitcher, despite his physique, was the victim of a fast one right over the plate from a St. Louis fan last summer.

For five or six innings, Harris, who is about 6 feet 6, and so thin he doesn't cast a shadow, was going along beautifully. If Harris has a weakness it is handling bunts, not his stuff, because he has great speed and a fine curve.

Unable to make any headway against his pitching, the Browns started to bunt and get away with it. Inability to handle the bunts fussed Harris and ruined his effectiveness. The Browns began to hit. Shortly afterward Harris, at the beckon of Manager Mack, was on his way to the showers.

As he was nearing the St. Louis dugout some fan shouted: "You certainly are having a tough time this summer, Harris. How do you manage to make a living in the winter?"

"Before Harris had a change to reply, if he had such an intention, some wag shouted:

"The big stiff is a model in a macaroni factory."

Even Harris had to smile.

The Women's club team have a practice game at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in the high school gymnasium.

GRIDIRON GAME IS IN NEED OF SLIGHT CHANGES

Leading Football Officials Favor Revisions in Playing Rules

By Billy Evans

Will the rules committee do any tinkering with the football code when they meet in New York to consider suggestions?

Unquestionably there are certain changes that could be made to better the game. None of them is of a radical nature, yet a slight change here and there might help.

Last year several college games were lost because the player carrying the ball failed to retain possession of it after crossing the goal line.

Usually when a player so offends a member of the opposing team falls on the ball, converting a touchdown into nothing more than a mere touchback.

A great many of the leading football coaches and officials seem to think that some special provision should be made in the rules for fumbled balls after the player carrying it had crossed the goal line.

There is a rule in football that the ball shall be declared dead when the ball or any part of the player's person is out of bounds, which means over the sides.

If the player carrying the ball fumbles it after he steps out of bounds, and the ball is recovered by the opposition, the ball reverts to its original holder.

Should TOUCHDOWN COUNT? Fumbling after having crossed the side lines means nothing since the player automatically stops the moment the player is forced out of bounds.

Just how to cover such a contingency is up to the officials. Some of the coaches believe the touchdown should count, if the ball is fumbled after the player has crossed the goal line, provided the player is free when he crosses the line.

The coaches believe some distinction should be made if a player is tackled before crossing the line, and then fumbles as he crosses the line, with the tackler holding on. In such a case they feel the ball should be in play, since the tackle was primarily the cause of the fumble.

The elimination of the goal after touchdown is generally favored. There is no question but that some day this feature of play will be stricken out.

Some restriction on the forward pass is also suggested. The opinion prevails that the forward pass is being overdone. A losing team, late in the game, goes to the forward pass almost entirely in the hope of getting away with a long toss for a touchdown.

It has been suggested that after the first incomplete forward pass, that for every other pass tried in the remaining three downs which is incomplete, the ball shall be taken back to the place where the hurler started the play.

There has been much comment on the shift plays used by a number of teams. The contention has been raised that many teams are in motion before the ball is passed, thereby making the play illegal.

There is really no way to cover this play in the code, as it resolves itself purely into a matter of judgment on the part of the official.

SLIM CHANCE FOR RUTH TO SET NEW HOME RUN RECORD

Sultan of Swat Gets Off to Late Start—Managers Take Tip from McGraw

By Henry L. Farrell

New York—Babe Ruth will be good enough for a fairly story if he sets a new home run mark this coming season.

Losing six weeks of the early season he will have need of a magic wand to pole out enough four base clouts from May 20 to pass his mark of 59.

He will be starting away cold against pitching that should be working up to mid-season warmth. In the first six weeks of the 1921 season he had gathered an even dozen homers.

His eye was right and the pitchers were going along with the customary wobble of chilly spring weather.

This year it will be different. No matter how much the sweat suitman may work while serving his sentence, his eye and his swing can't be working as well as if he had been looking them over in actual play.

Even if Commissioner Landis had not given him the legal slap, many smart baseball men believed he would have fallen short of his 1920 and 1921 records. Babe has reached the point where he doesn't take his stuff too seriously. His habits do not follow the lines of strict training and an athlete who takes on flesh readily has to deprive himself of a lot of the off-limits pastimes that Ruth enjoys.

Every manager in the American league who saw the world's series last fall may have picked up some good tips from the Giant pitchers on the art of stopping the ball killer. If McGraw could solve the problem so readily, it ought to prove of benefit to the others.

Commissioner Landis no doubt will not reconsider the case and lift the sentence on the ban. It was only a commercial argument that was advanced to seek leniency for the barn-stormer.

Determination To Win At All Costs Feature School Athletes' Play

Love of Victory Urges Amateur Performer to Put Forth Best Efforts; Appleton Boy Shows Way to Mates.

School spirit—putting all thoughts of self behind him so the colors he wears may be carried on to victory—distinguishes the college and high school athlete from the professional player.

Disregarding personal injuries and fighting on and on for the love of his school, even when the tide of battle is going against him, and putting forth his best efforts to win until he is ready to drop from exhaustion, and even then struggling with all his might to win are the things that make the college and school athlete stand out from the professional performer and make amateur contests stirring and interesting spectacles.

An incident that shows a school athlete's great desire to win for the honor of his school occurred at the Appleton-Neenah high school basketball game Saturday night in Neenah.

Capt. Brice of the Appleton team got out of a sick bed to be on the side of the scorers' table in civilian clothes and with growing anxiety watched his team mates playing a losing game against the Neenah quintet.

The first half ended with Neenah in the lead by a comfortable margin. Brice could stand no more and between friends begged Coach Vincent that he be allowed to play. He put on one of the substitute's suits and appeared on the floor in the second half full of fight, in spite of the fact he was weak from illness and hobbling around on a sprained knee.

Setting a false pace and battling with all his might he led his team against the enemy, and his men, following his example, went in with a new determination to win. They fought every step of the way and gradually cut down the Neenah lead until they forged the front and put over a victory in the last few minutes of play.

All of the American League umpires will welcome the announcement that Johnny Evers has been signed as an assistant to Kid Gleason at Chicago. They may not prove to be such a wise move, as it was Evers who advised the Cincinnati club to ride Eddie Collins in the 1919 series in order to break down the morale of the White Sox. It is hardly probable that Collins, who is the brains of the ball club, has forgotten it.

The contention is made that when baseball was originated, if the pitcher made a balk the batsman was entitled to take first base on such an act, as well as all other base runners advance one base. Is that correct?

In looking over the guide of 1867 as edited by Henry Chadwick, the father of baseball, I find the following comment on the contention raised:

"When a balk is made by the pitcher, every player running the bases is entitled to one base without being put out. The striker cannot take a base on a balk for the reason that he is not a player running the bases until he has struck a fair ball."

There you have Father Chadwick's explanation of the rules at that time.

Any club in either of the major leagues would welcome a good left-hander. Strangely enough Cleveland and New York, the two contenders last year, and picked to show well this year, are lacking a good steady south-paw. Mills and Harper are too erratic to get much consideration.

APPLETON HIGH IN FINAL HOME GAME SATURDAY

Orange and Blue Quintet Meets Oshkosh Preps in Alexander Gymnasium

Playing the last home game of the season and the next to the last game of the regular schedule, Appleton high school basketball tilters will go into action Saturday night in Alexander gymnasium against the fast Oshkosh high school team. Oshkosh is exceptionally strong this season and Coach Vincent is looking forward to a hard battle.

The Orange and Blue players started work for the struggle Monday afternoon with a long practice in the high school gymnasium. The Appleton mentor expects to send his men hard every afternoon this week to get them in a shape for a strenuous contest. The team has not been playing its best brand of basketball in its last two games and Coach Vincent will work the boys this week to get them back in top form.

Capt. Brice was unable to report for practice Monday afternoon. The Orange and Blue leader has been ill for several days and played in only part of the game against Neenah Saturday night. He is much better now, however, and will be out for practice by Wednesday and is expected to be in condition to start against Oshkosh Saturday night. With Brice in shape again, Coach Vincent will have his strongest combination in Saturday's struggle as all other men on the squad are in good shape.

All of the American League umpires will welcome the announcement that Johnny Evers has been signed as an assistant to Kid Gleason at Chicago. They may not prove to be such a wise move, as it was Evers who advised the Cincinnati club to ride Eddie Collins in the 1919 series in order to break down the morale of the White Sox. INTERLAKERS MEET FAST CAGE OUTFIT

Clash With Hortonville Merchants Five Wednesday Night in Armory G

The Interlake basketball quintet will clash with the fast Hortonville Merchants Wednesday night in Armory G. The Hortonville team is one of the strongest aggregations in this section of Wisconsin and the Interlakes are expecting a hard battle. Manager Gregory of the Interlakes has announced his lineup to start the game:

Ray and Elliott, forwards; Gregory, center; Gardner and Kessler, guards; Rushton, Dunn and Bates will be in the lineup before the game is over. The battle will get underway at 7:30. No preliminary contest will be staged but a dance will follow the game.

Playing in top form and setting a fast pace from start to finish the Interlakes defeated the Clintonville Athletics by a score of 26 to 11 Saturday night in Armory G. The Leans of the Interlake met defeated the Fats 11 to 6 in a preliminary struggle.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels: removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush out the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases. adv.

Businessmen Here Urged to Hear Catlin and Kukuck Discuss Lawmaking
Parthena Johanna Piebe Produces Average of 38 Quarts of Milk Daily

Duplicating a production record made by one of his purebred Holsteins last year, Nick Palitzer of Appleton route 5 has a 5 year old cow named Parthena, Johanna Piebe which yielded 36.4 pounds of butter in seven days. Mr. Palitzer has entered this record in the contest for the production trophy being offered by the First National Bank.
This cow gave 554.2 pounds of milk in seven days. Her highest daily production was 83.8 pounds of milk or 38 quarts. This is practically the same record as was made by a 10 year old cow owned by Mr. Palitzer last year.
Two other records kept in seven day tests of Mr. Palitzer's herd indicate his animals are of a good strain of producers. One of these records was that of Ormsby Parthena, Pontiac, a 4 year old which produced 24 1/2 pounds of butter from 35 pounds of milk. The other was Angie Cornelia Parthena, 5 year old, which produced 23.6 pounds of butter. Her highest daily production was 38 quarts.

SEEK WAY TO INCREASE PRODUCTION OF HOODS
Demonstrations of the motor protector and hood cover recently invented by Fred V. Hennemann and David Seekins were being made to manufacturers in Chicago Tuesday by Mr. Seekins.
The inventors have had two machines at work here turning out the new device during the last few weeks but production did not exceed eight complete outfits daily. For this reason it was decided to demonstrate the device to large manufacturers and have them submit bids on quantity production.

How YOU Can Get Well
It is well understood through physiology that the brain generates all nerve energy and transmits it to every cell in the body through the nervous system.
The spinal cord is an extension of the brain leading down the center of the spine from which the main nerve cables pass out between the vertebrae branching and re-branching millions of times on their way to every nerve point part of the body.
Knowing that nerve energy is the very life force from which every cell depends for its very existence, it is but common sense to look to nerve pressure for the cause of disease.
The spine being made up of twenty-four movable bones held in place by ligaments and muscle, it is not difficult to produce a slight misalignment in many ways without attracting your attention to the spine, and it is passed unnoticed but leaving a constant pressure on the nerve cable at that point. Every time you find an abnormal condition in the body, pressure will be found to exist upon the nerve supplying the affected part. Correcting the misalignment by Palmer method, Chiropractic adjustments is the logical thing to do.

What Half a Million Women Are Saying
A corset that is so popular that half a million women speak its praises must be an unusual corset. Modart is the corset they are all talking about today. Why? There is a reason.
One woman will tell you she prefers the Modart because it is the most stylish corset she can buy. Another says her Modart is so comfortable she forgets she is wearing a corset. Another likes the Modart because it is so much lighter than other corsets. But there is a far more important reason why the Modart Corset appeals to the best-dressed women.

Modart Corsets
Front Laced

The Modart combines every fine quality you desire in a corset. Nothing is lacking. Modart Corsets are the result of the broadest experience in designing high-grade front-laced corsets exclusively, and an adherence to quality ideals that has never swerved from its original purpose—to make the best corset.
To really know the Modart, you must have one fitted. Then, and only then, can you begin to appreciate why women who wear Modarts are so enthusiastic about this corset.
Let one of our expert corsetieres fit you. She will select the proper Modart model that expresses your individuality. See the Modart on your figure—before you purchase. There is no better way to judge a corset.
Come in now and see the new "phantom" models. These Modarts are the season's style sensation. You will want one of them.
